brand description

Troublefish® is an independent designer toy and collectibles brand founded by industry veteran, Thomas Troisch. Conceived in Seattle, Washington and established in Savannah, Georgia, Thomas and his team design original toys and unique collectibles for discerning humans to enjoy for many years to come. To maintain a low overhead, Troublefish sources from a pool of seasoned designers, gamers, ad-men, nerds, and manufacturers to create collectible products of the highest quality.

history

early:

Over the past twenty years in Seattle, Thomas Troisch has created content for brands with big audiences and some of the most recognizable properties in the world. From entertainment to advertising, he has worked as an art director, designer, project manager, media consultant, and talent scout. Prior to becoming a professional creative, he sought out a career path in marine biology – a natural choice when studying and living in the Pacific Northwest. A rising career in entertainment, along with a vivid imagination and lifelong interest in everything sci-fi, introduced Thomas to designer toys. His back-to-back careers in entertainment and then advertising quickly turned a hobby into a passion, propelling Thomas to establish his own line of designer toys and prints under the Troublefish brand.

recent:

Since the move to Savannah, Thomas has fallen back on his undergrad field of study, but this time, it's for inspiration. Paired with his extensive experience in entertainment and marketing, a life-long interest in all things Sci-fi and a pinch of imagination, he has developed a very unique universe of designer toys and collectibles. In 2016, upon the release of resin toy, Capt. QUINT®, Troublefish was awarded its trademark certificate. A limited (66) release of Classic Horror Movie Pin-Ups Series I is available at Bigcartel.com - with Series II only a girl away from completion. MerCars®, the studio's latest project, will begin prototyping in Q2 FY17 for a set of 3 muscle car/fish hybrids in the 1/24 scale!
